Part number 67420

Focus/Mazda Adjustable Rear Arm

Q1: The Pinch bolt on my 67420 contacts or is too close to the rear shock housing. What should I do?

A1: There is not much clearance between the shock and the adjustable arm on this platform. Since the SPC arm is the same for the right and left hand side, you may find that the side of the vehicle that has the pinch bolt nut and threads facing the shock is closer than you would like at full droop. Once the vehicle is resting on the tires there will be more clearance between the control arm and the shock, however if you feel that there is still not enough clearance, we recommend that you remove the pinch bolt and reinstall it so the button head of the bolt is closest to the shock housing.
